The Hunchback of Notre Dame

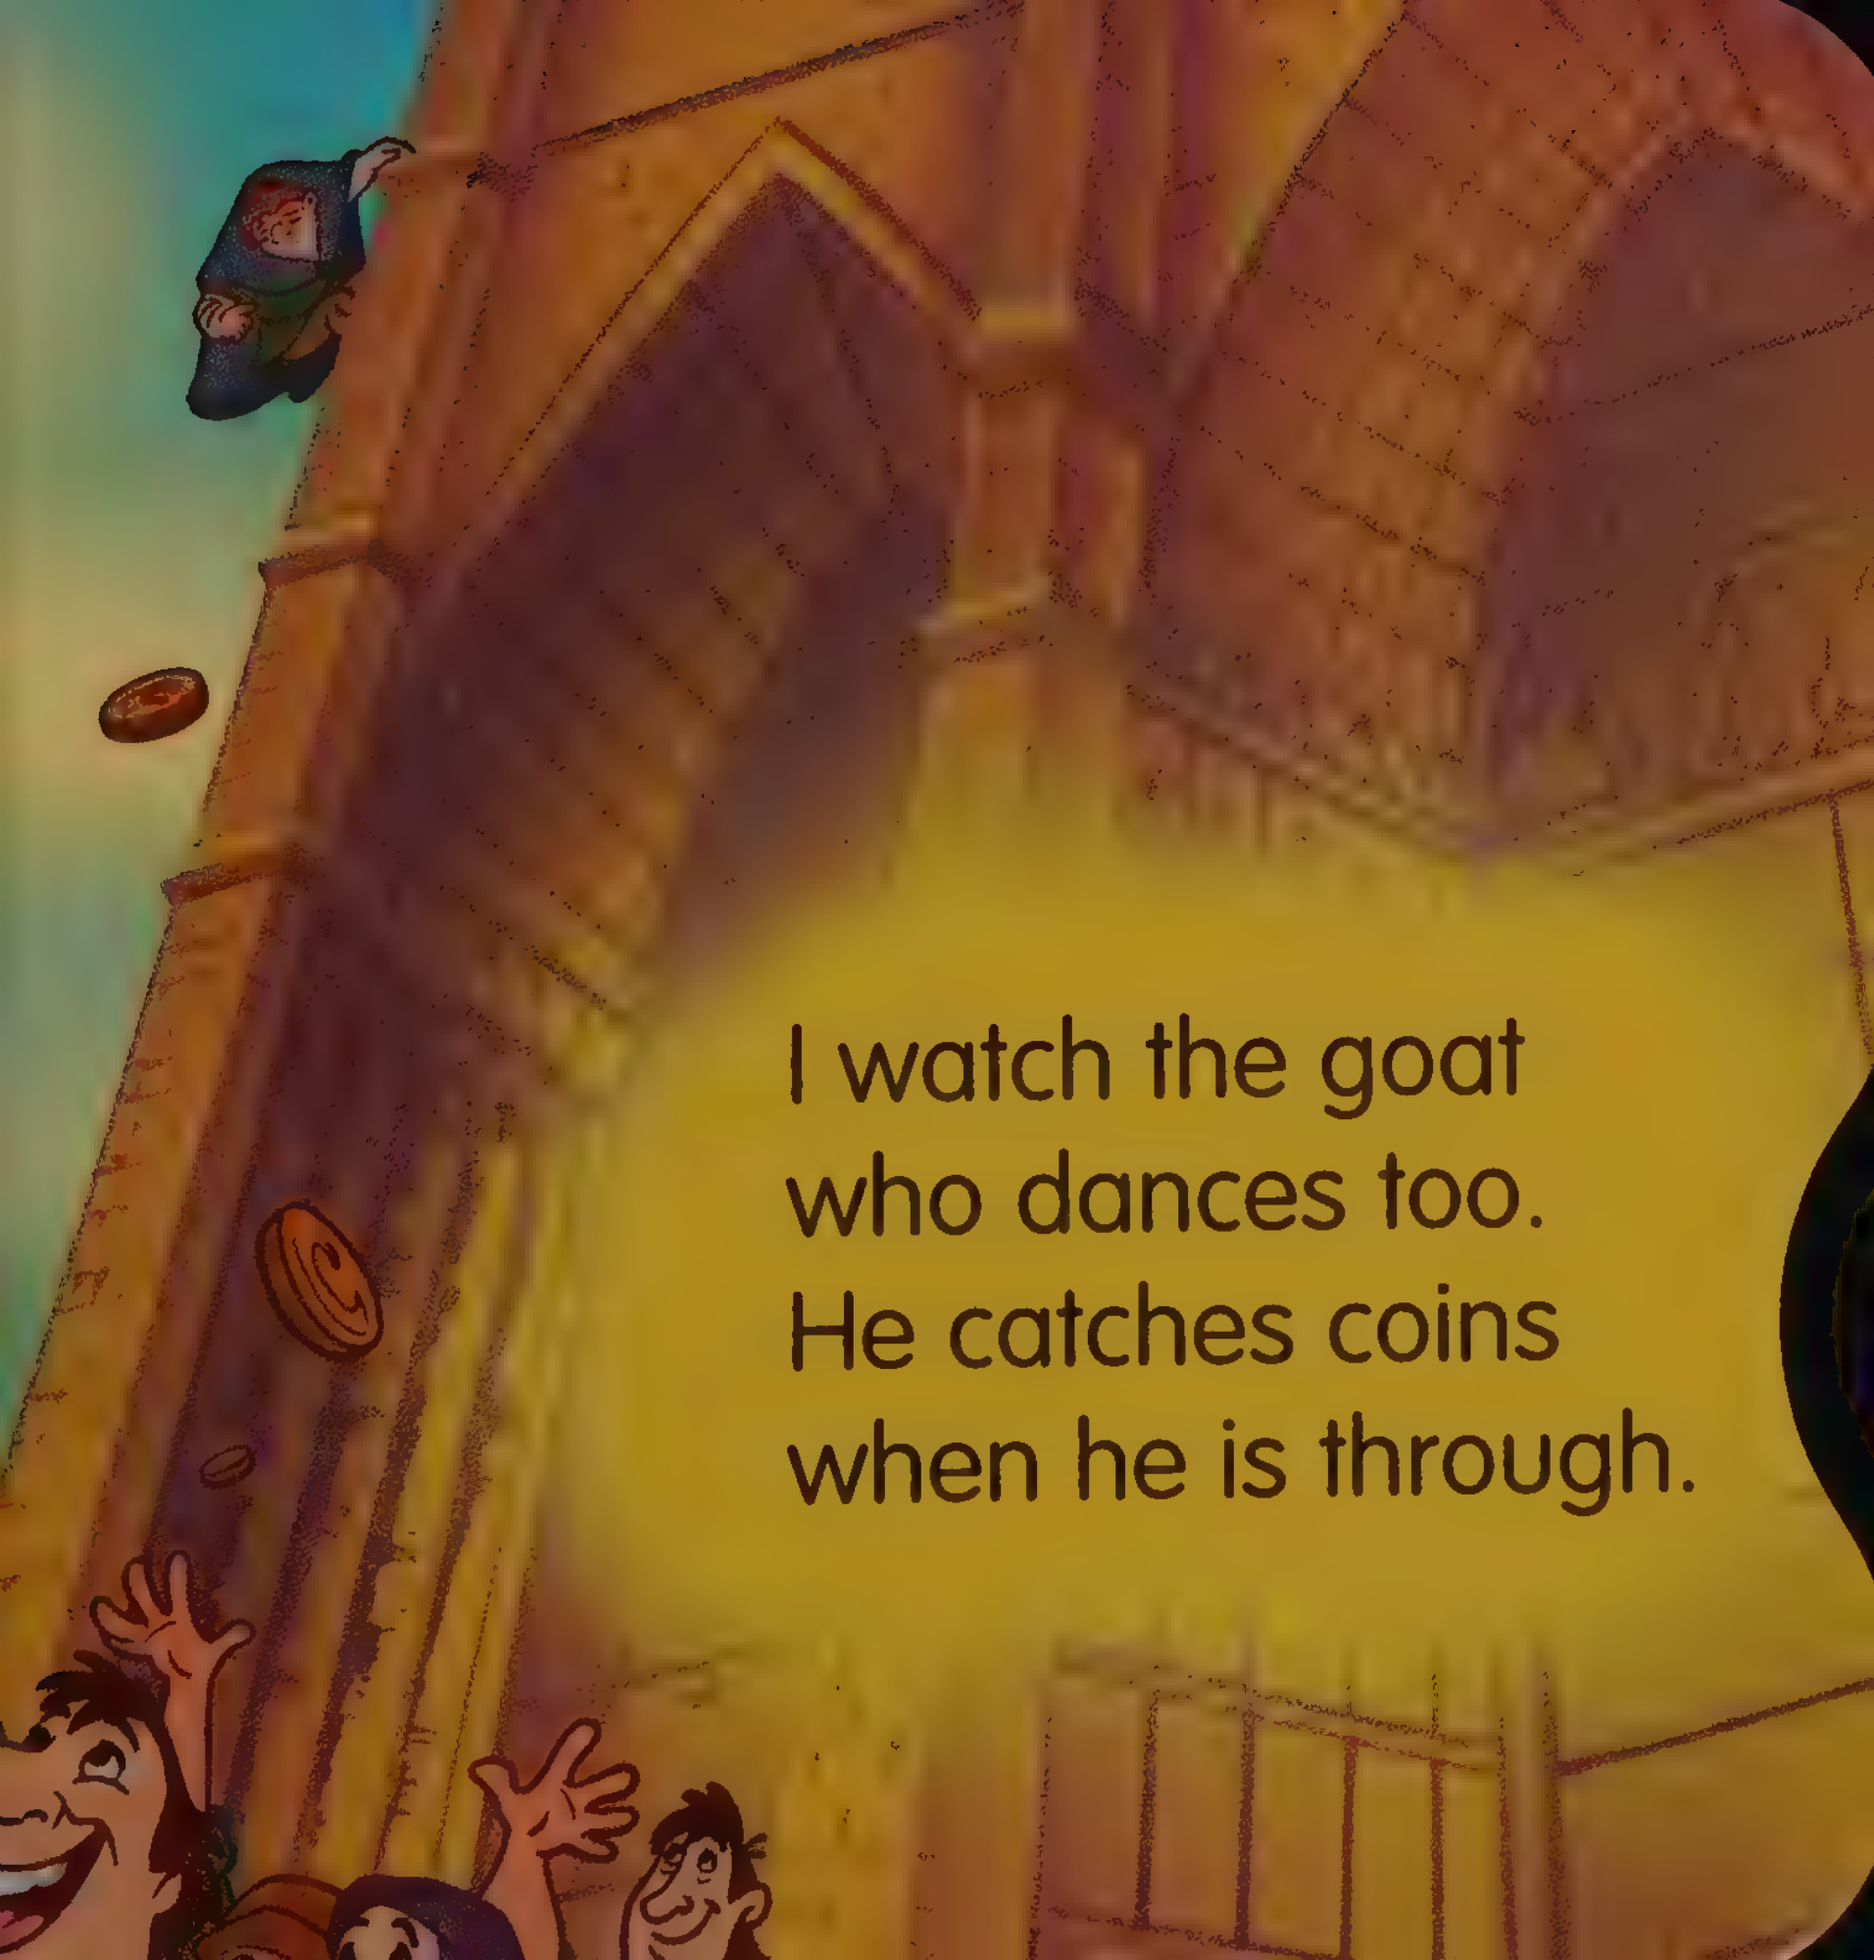
Quasimodo's Busy Day

What's your day like?
I'll tell you mine....
I wake at dawn
and ring the bells.
I pet the birds
then wish them well.

I look below
and watch the crowd.
The flags are bright—
the wagons, loud.

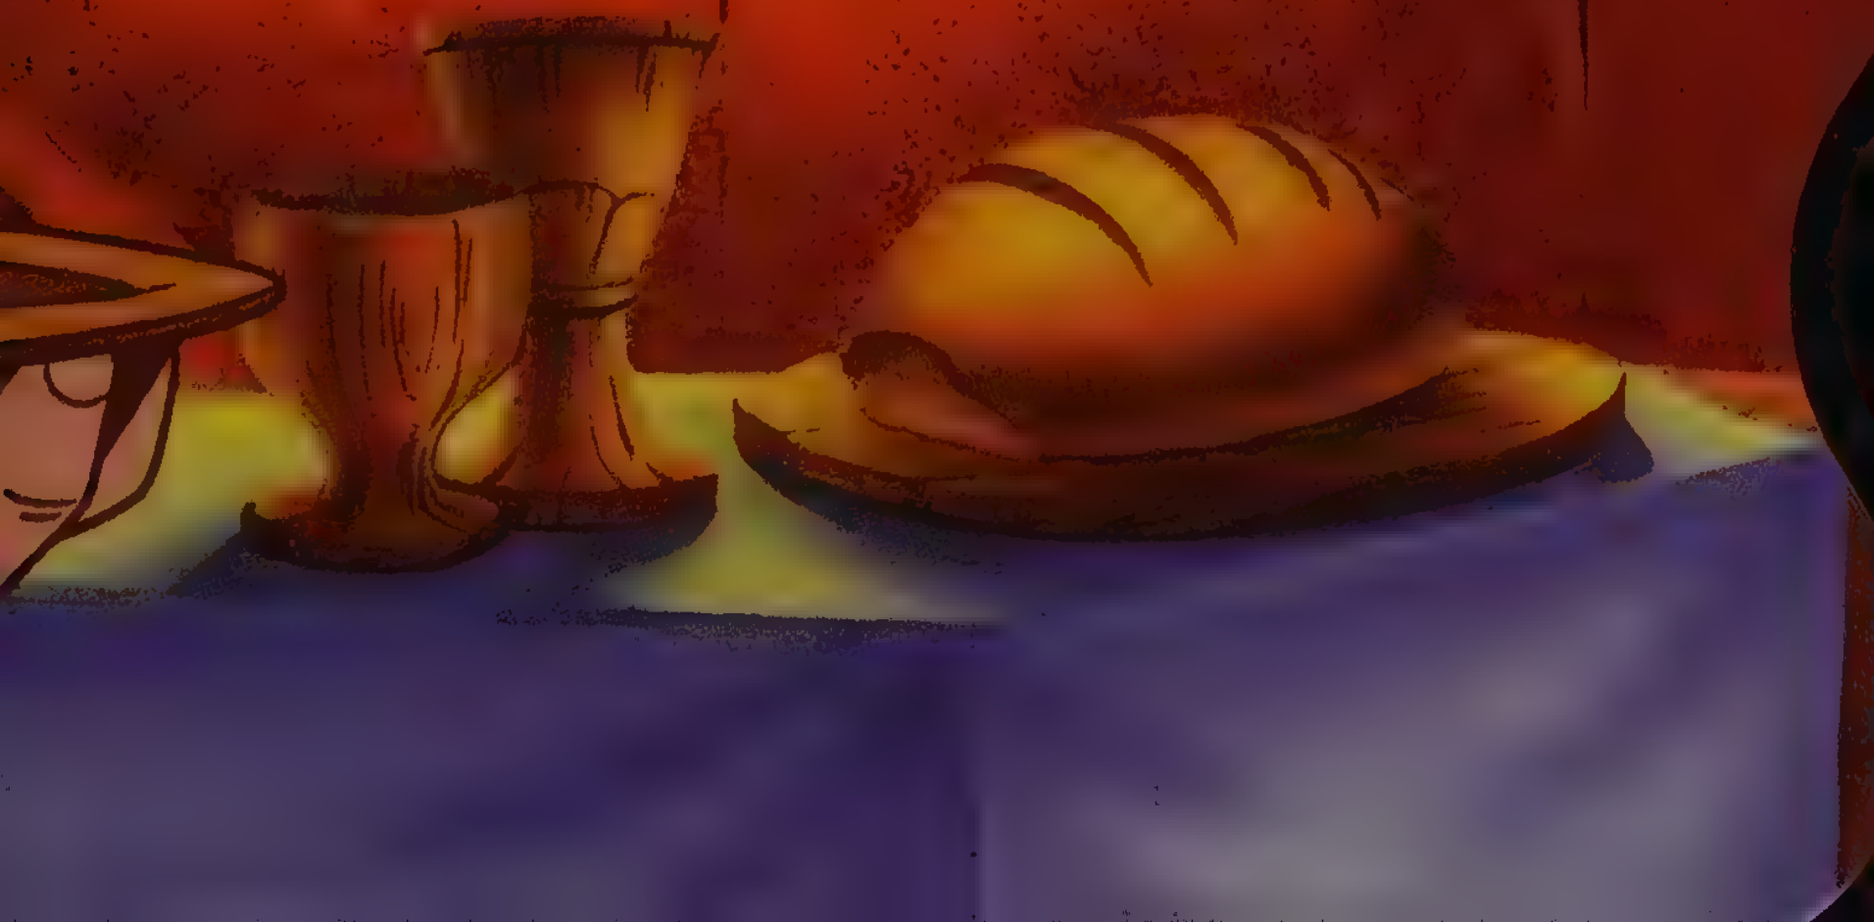
I hear the sound
of drums, then flutes
then tambourines
and lovely lutes.

I see the girl
who likes to dance.
I hear the shouts
and then the chants.



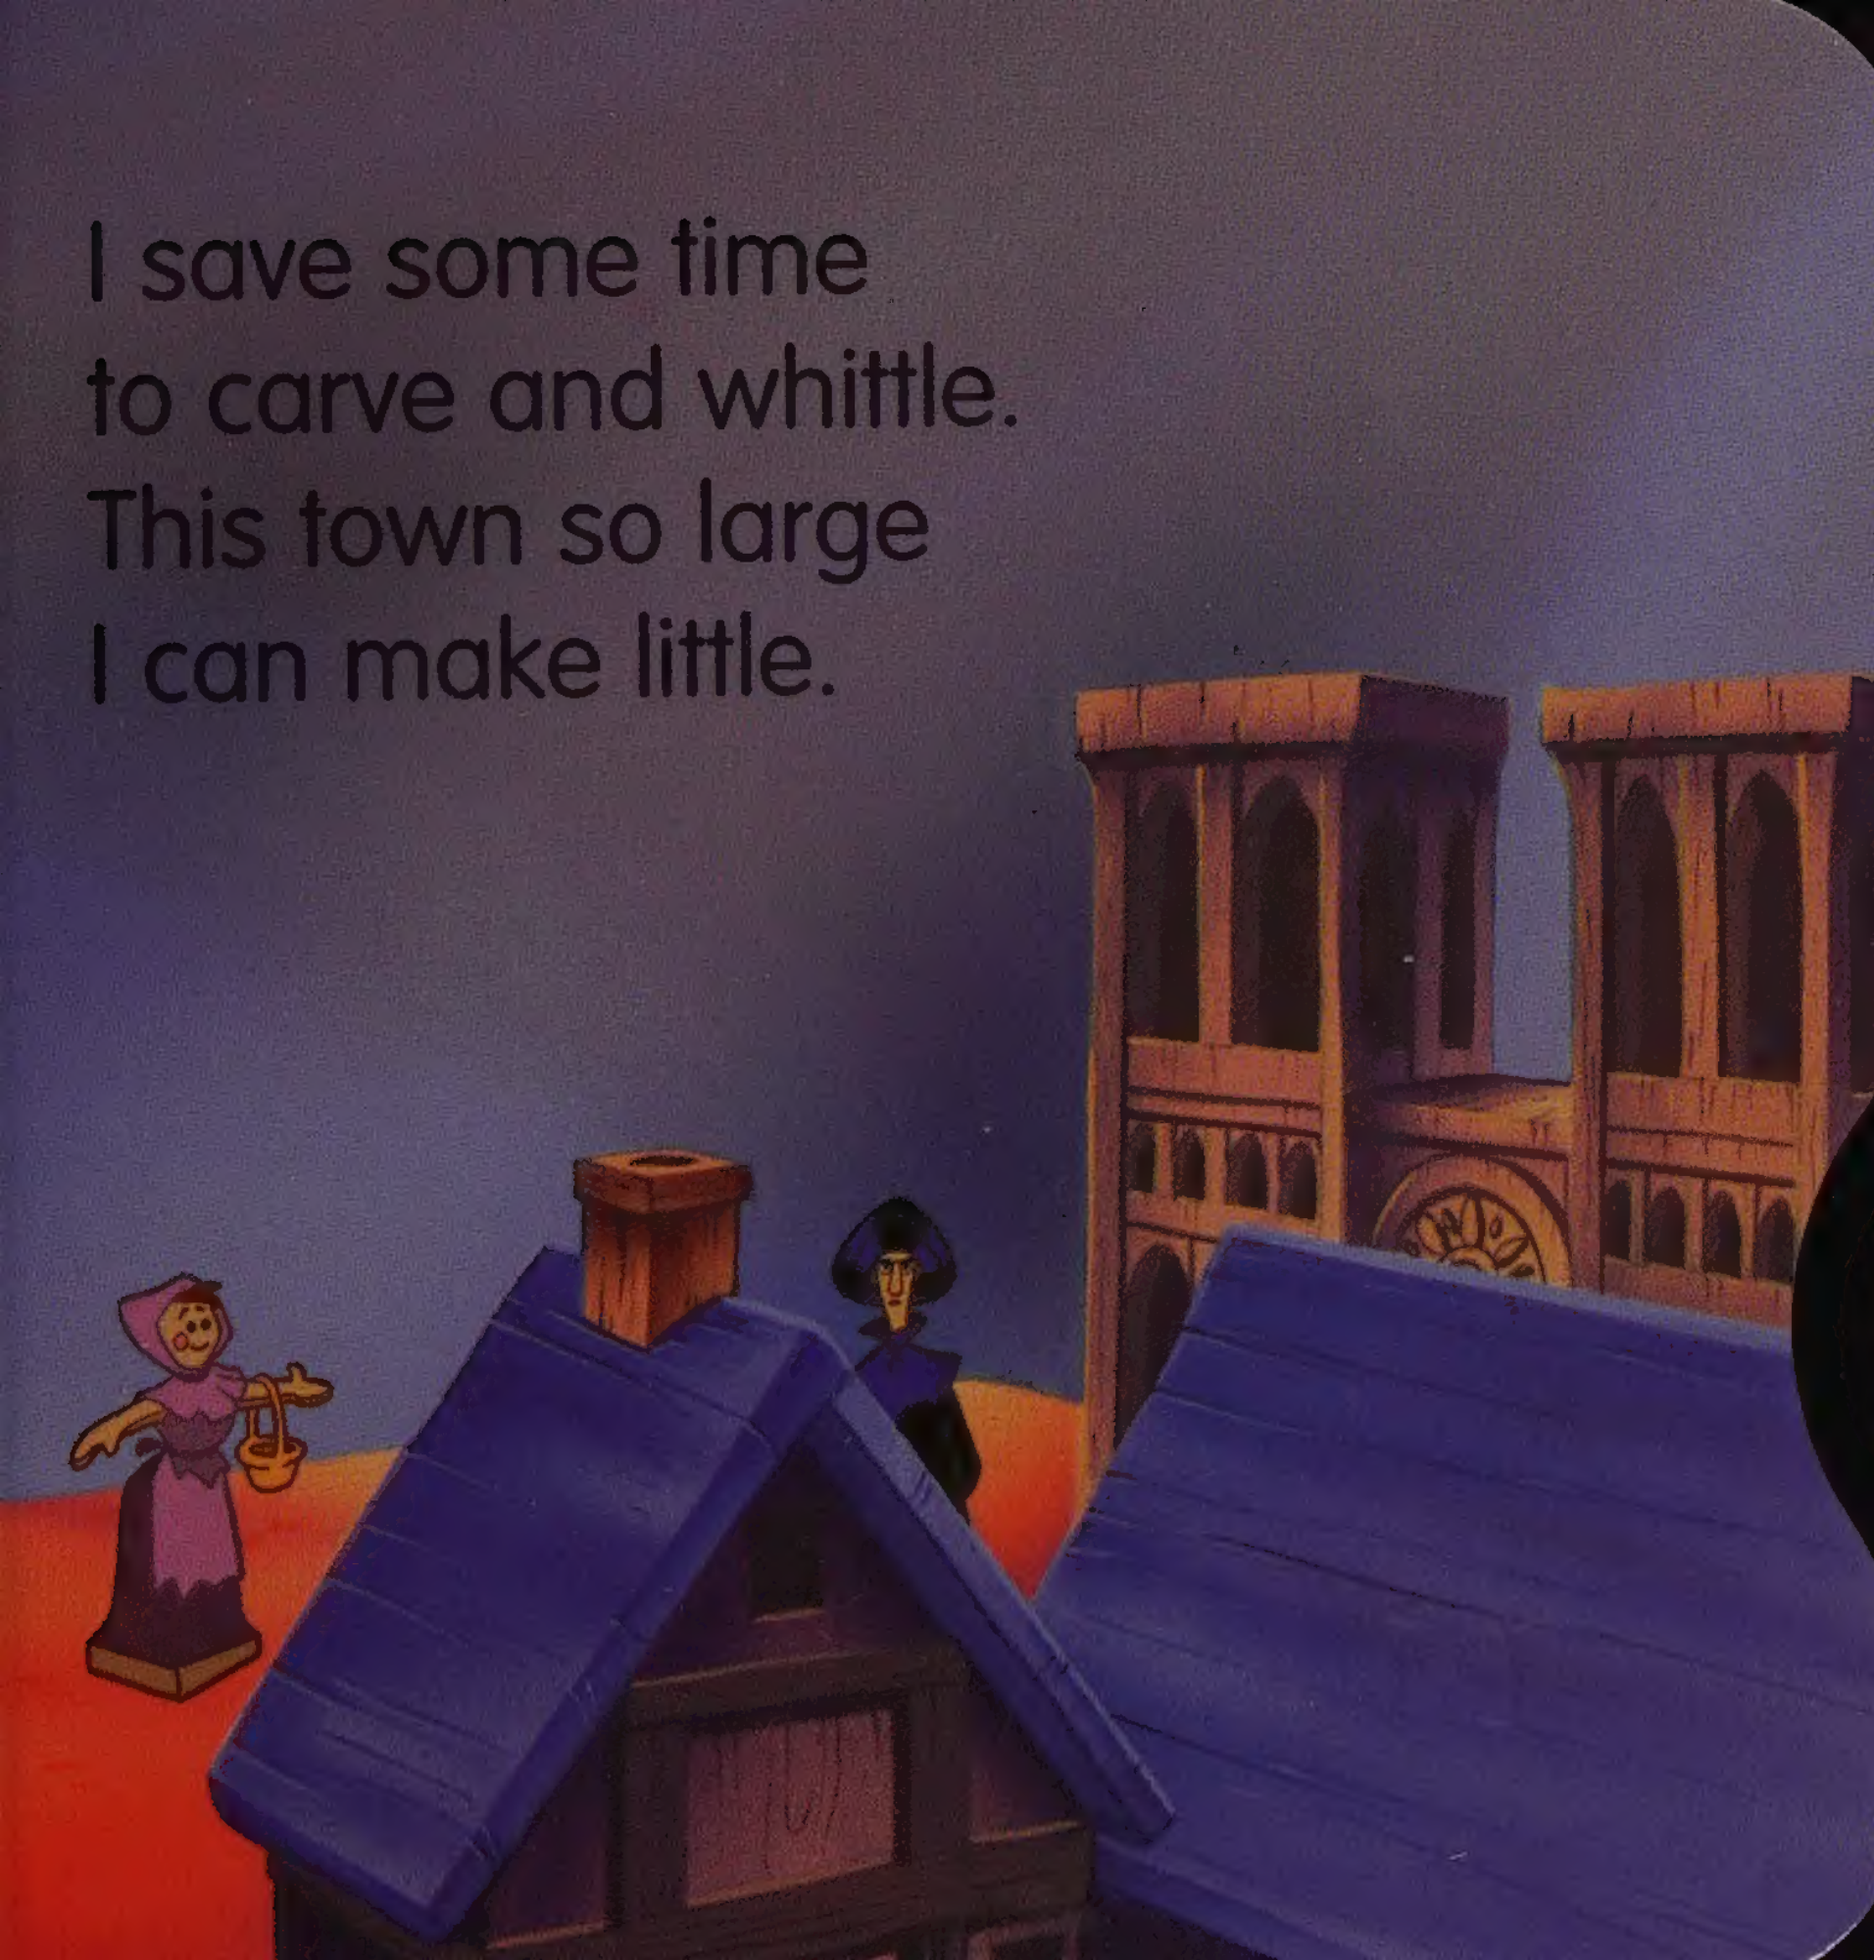
I watch the goat
who dances too.
He catches coins
when he is through.

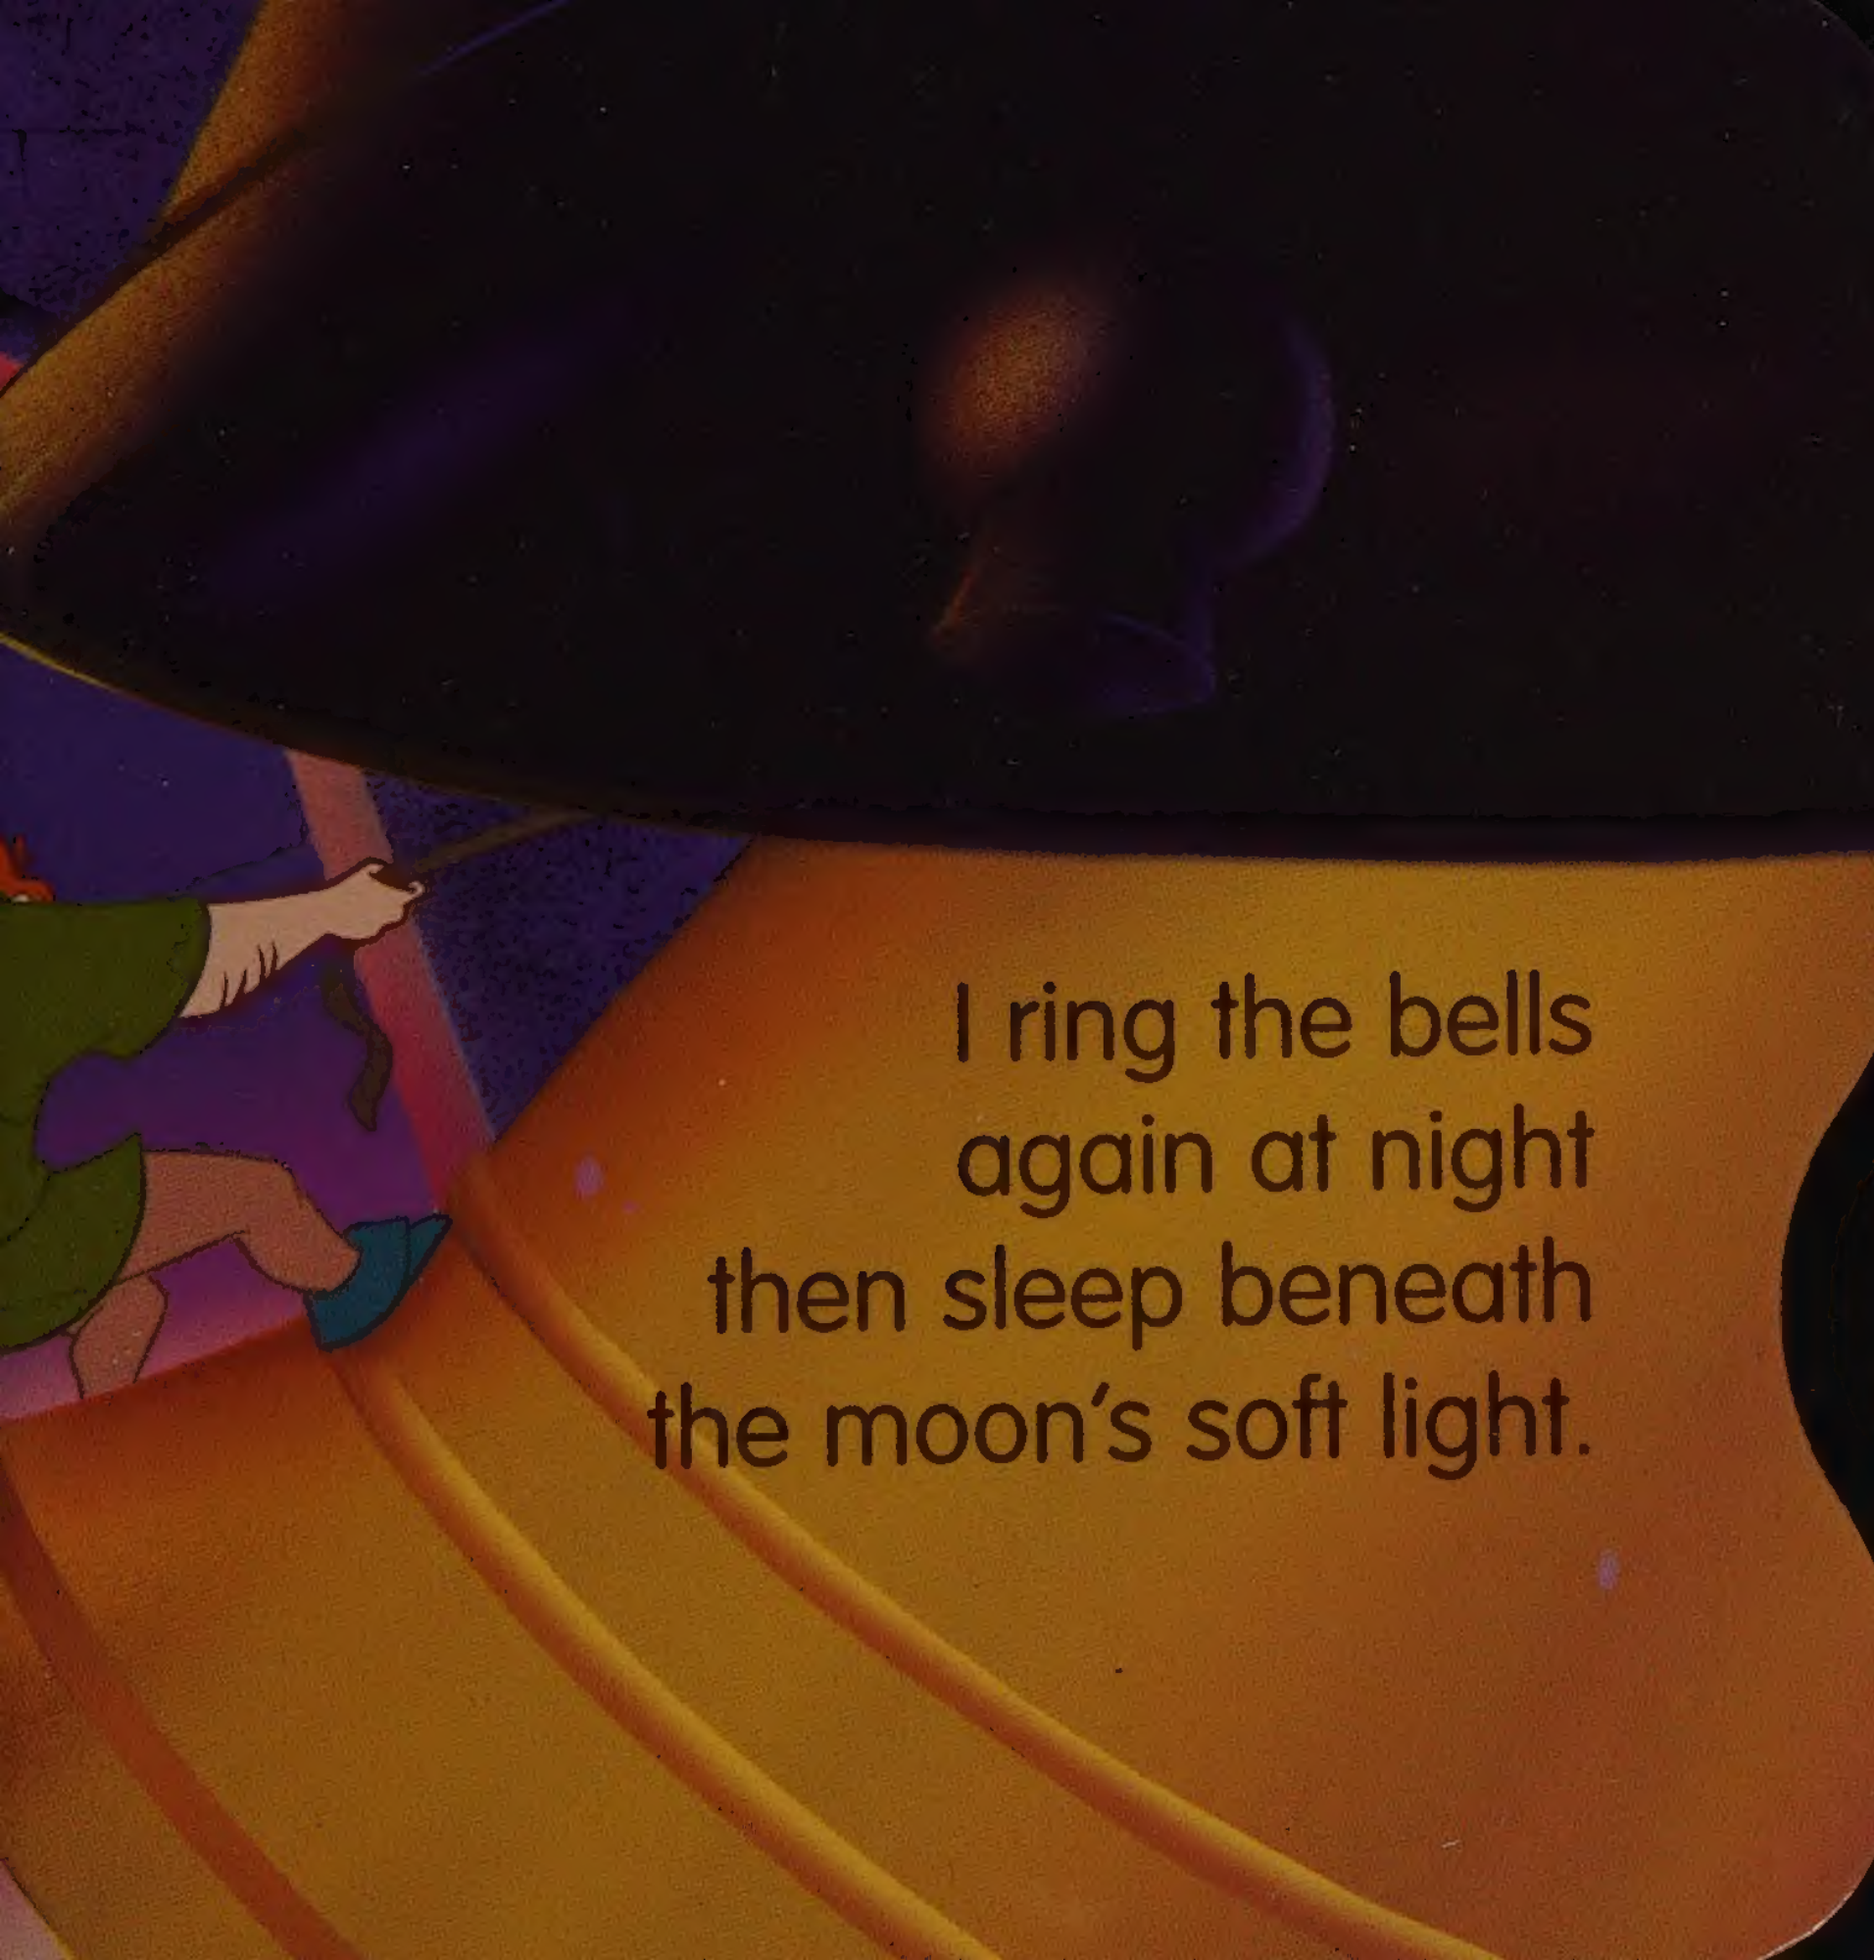
At lunch I get
my plate and bowls.
Then I have soup
with hard, white rolls.



All afternoon
I do my chores.
I dust my room
and sweep
the floors.

I save some time
to carve and whittle.
This town so large
I can make little.





I ring the bells
again at night
then sleep beneath
the moon's soft light.
